Vol. XXII.] No. 45.

The Official Gazette

OF BRITISH GUIANA.

Published by Authority of His Excellency the Governor.

GEORGETOWN, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 29TH, 1905.

Government Notices.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,
28th November, 1905.

241. THE following Bill, which it is proposed to introduce into the Court of Policy, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,
CHARLES [illegible] COX,
Government Secretary.

THE EAST DEMERARA SEA DEFENCES BILL, 1905.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to provide for the Sea Defences of the East Coast of Demerara, between Kitty and Mahaica.

Instead of requiring each individual owner of land to keep up his sea defences as is at present the case under the Sea Defence Ordinance, 1883, the Bill provides for the sea defences of the district named being dealt with and maintained as a whole, and the cost defrayed by the owners of land in the district, in proportion to the extent of land owned by them. By dealing with the sea defences in this way, it is hoped that they will be more efficiently and more economically kept up than is possible when each proprietor keeps up his own sea defences separately.

The oversight and control of the sea defences is entrusted by the Bill to four Commissioners, one being the Colonial Civil Engineer, and three being elected. Two of them are to be elected by the proprietors of the estates in the district, and one by representatives of the Village Councils, of the incorporated villages in the district. By this means, the people who are interested and who have to find the money for sea defences will, through the Commissioners, have the control of the spending of it, and no sea defence works are to be undertaken until they have been sanctioned by the Commissioners.

These works will be of two kinds, (1) the maintenance and upkeep of existing sea defences, called "Annually recurrent works," and (2) the construction of new sea defences where necessary, called "Extraordinary works."

Digitized by Google

The cost of these works is to be assessed upon all land in the district, but in case of Extraordinary works, the cost is to spread over a period of fifty years.

All works sanctioned by the Commissioners will be executed by the Public Works Department, which is to have charge of the sea defences of the district.

A provision (clause 23) has been inserted in the Bill, which enables any owner of land to have his holding assessed separately from the estate of which it forms part, and renders his land liable to be taken in execution only for the assessment upon it. It is hoped by this means to prevent the recurrence of those hardships which have from time to time occurred, of the owners of small lots of land having their lots sold along with the estate on which they are, for non-payment by the owner of the estate of the cost of sea defence works under the present law, and thus losing their land from no fault of their own.

The reason why the operation of the Bill is confined to the East Coast of Demerara is because in that part of the Colony the inroads of the sea are more destructive than in other parts of the Colony, and the upkeep of the sea defences of that part of the Colony have been more troublesome and expensive than elsewhere. For the rest of the Colony the present law, for the present at least, seems adequate.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO MAKE PROVISION FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF THE SEA DEFENCES OF CERTAIN PORTIONS OF THE COLONY."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

Short title.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

APPEAL FROM TAXATION OF COSTS.

THIS 20TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1905.

SIMON MAY & CO.

versus

LIQUIDATOR McGOWAN & CO.

This is an application for review of taxation of costs under somewhat peculiar circumstances.

The costs, the subject of the application, were awarded in an application by Simon May and Company for an order reversing the decision of the Liquidators of McGowan & Co., Limited, who rejected the proof filed by the applicants as creditors. Mr. Laurence, who is the Liquidator of McGowan & Co. applied for and received the Court's sanction to employ a Solicitor in the matter. Mr. Sampson was thereupon instructed by Mr. Laurence and in his turn instructed Mr. Laurence who is a Barrister-at-Law. When the application of Simon May was heard it was dismissed on an objection, with costs, which Mr. Laurence argued before the Court.

The items objected to are item 1 consultation and attendance on counsel $10.

Item 4.	Preparing affidavit	H. H. Laurence ...	$ 7 00
5.	,, ,,	P. Dargan ...	$ 10 00
6.	,, ,,	L. A. Babb ...	$ 3 00
9.	Appearance of Solicitor and Counsel in Court on 18th and 19th October, 1900	...	$ 30 00
10.	Attendance asking for and taking up Copy Court's order ...	...	$ 2 00

The objection to item 1 is that Mr. Laurence must have been interviewed after the Court granted the order and the legal position discussed therefore no consultation or attendance could be allowed. That he could not be retained by the Solicitor as the funds for such retention were derived from himself,

The Liquidator as a trustee had his remuneration fixed by special resolution of the creditors and allowing him to benefit would practically be increasing his remuneration. It is further objected that the Liquidator was a necessary witness.

The objections to items 4, 5, 6 and 9 are that they are excessive in addition as regards item 9 of the same objection as to item 1.

The objection to item 10 is that it is not allowable as only attendances in the course of the action are allowable.

With regard to item 1 there is a case of London Scottish Benefit Society v. Chorley, 13 Q. B.D., 873, in which it was held that a Solicitor who defends in person is entitled upon taxation to the same costs as if he had employed a Solicitor except in respect of items which the fact of his acting directly renders unnecessary such as consulting himself or instructing himself or attending upon himself and in the case of in re Universal Private Telegraph Company, 23 L.T., N.S., page 884, a Solicitor liquidator was not permitted to employ his partner as his Solicitor in the winding up unless the partner acted without remuneration; clearly on the principle that a liquidator shall not participate in any of the profits arising out of an employment of that nature.

I cannot see any difference between the case of a Solicitor employing his partner and that of a Barrister liquidator employing a Solicitor who in his turn instructs the barrister thus making the liquidator both employer and employed for although the barrister was not personally interested in the action and might be said not to mix the characters of party and counsel (see Newton v. Ricketts 12 Jurist 107-238 and New Brunswick and Canada Railway Co. 9 House of Lords Cases, 711) the same principle applies in the case of a barrister liquidator as in that of a Solicitor liquidator.

The sanction of the Court was given to the employment of a solicitor in defending the appeal and this sanction covered the employment where necessary of counsel but did not go to the extent of the employment of the person to whom such sanction was given unless it was clearly understood that he should act without remuneration.

I therefore disallow items 1, 4, and 9. As to items 5 and 6 I see no reason for interfering with the amount allowed by the taxing officer.

The result is that the bill of costs will be reduced by $47.

Each party to bear his own costs of this review.

Have authorized the Undersigned to conclude the following arrangement:

1. The Government of His Britannic Majesty being of opinion that the Greek Currant Retention Law and "Land Tax and Export Duty on Currants" Law are inconsistent with the stipulation contained in Article 2 paragraph 2 of the Commercial agreement between the Governments of the United Kingdom and Greece of 1890, are ready to withdraw their protest against these measures in return for the concessions hereinafter indicated.

2. The Government of His Hellenic Majesty being desirous of arriving at a satisfactory settlement on this point with the Government of His Britannic Majesty, engage to recommend to the Legislature in favour of goods of British origin or manufacture the reductions of the Duties laid down in the Customs Tariff, as specified in the annexed document.

3. The Government of Newfoundland agree to recommend to the Parliament of Newfoundland the admission duty free of currants and sultanas the produce of the Hellenic Kingdom imported into Newfoundland in return for the reduction by the Greek Government of the duty on Newfoundland codfish imported into Greece to five francs per hundred okes.

It is understood that the Colonies, Possessions, and Protectorates of His Britannic Majesty which are at present parties to the Commercial Treaty of November 10th, 1886, shall each of them separately have the power of withdrawing at any time from that Convention on giving twelve months' previous notice of their intention so to do.

5. In addition to the foregoing stipulations the two Governments agree that during the existence of the Commercial Treaty of 1886 and the Commercial Agreement of 1890 as modified by the Declaration of June 16th, 1890, and the present Declaration, the goods produced or manufactured in any part of the British Empire shall enjoy in the Dominions of His Hellenic Majesty complete and unconditional most-favoured-nation treatment so long as such Possession, Colony or Protectorate shall accord to goods of Greek origin and manufacture treatment as favourable as it gives to the goods the produce or manufacture of any other foreign country.

6. As soon as notice is given* by His Hellenic Majesty's Government that this Declaration has obtained legislative sanction in Greece, His Britannic Majesty's Government will withdraw their protest against the measures mentioned in Article 1.

7. The Commercial Treaty of 1886, the Commercial Agreement of 1890, as modified by the Declaration of June 16th, 1890, and by the present Declaration, and the present Declaration itself shall remain in force for five years from the date on which the Hellenic Government shall have notified that this Declaration has obtained legislative sanction in Greece, and thereafter until the expiration of a year from the day on which one or other of the Contracting Parties shall have repudiated them.

Each of the Contracting Parties reserves, however, the right of causing them to terminate at the end of the fifth year upon twelve months' notice being given previously.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 25TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1905.

SAGAR AND ORS.
versus
EXORS. HOOKUMCHAND.

The defendants have each filed an account of their respective intromissions and I have heard the parties on the objections raised thereto by the plaintiffs.

The order of the Court of the 1st June, 1905, orders the defendants to render to the plaintiffs a true and correct inventory of all the estate, property and effects of their testator, as the same were taken possession of by them at the time of the death of the said testator. This part of the order has not been complied with, the defendants only filing separate accounts of their intromissions with the estate. No objection, however, has been taken on the part of the plaintiffs to the accounts having been filed without such an inventory.

It is contended on behalf of the plaintiffs that as the executors had ample means at their disposal to pay all the debts of the deceased, the executors should have paid the debts and collected the outstanding amounts due to the deceased forthwith and closed the estate and not have kept it open for two years. According to the inventory, the debts due by the estate were $379, the amount actually paid by the executors, according to the accounts, is $255 22 (items 1, 7, 8 and 10 of Mr. Wills' account and items 85, 86, 87, 89 and 93 of Sookdeo's account), and the testamentary expenses, estate's duty, etc., paid is $600 53, a total of $855 75. Mr. Wills drew from the Savings Bank $1,000, from the B. G. Bank $550, received from de Freitas $500 and from Semple $20, a total of $2,170. These sums of money so drawn were specifically bequeathed to certain legatees. In fact the testator bequeathed all the property he had in specific legacies, except certain small promissory notes which the executors do not appear to have taken any serious steps to collect. I think the executors should have paid the debts out of the money drawn by them and closed the estate, abating the legacies proportionately. They were not entitled to remain in possession and carry on the estate as they have done.

As regards the commissions chargeable by the executors, it has been decided more than once and it is clearly the law (sec. 17 of the Inheritance Ordinance, 1877), that they can only charge commissions on the amounts of money actually received by them.

Dealing with Sookeo's account, a large amount of items are objected to as not being vouched, the plaintiffs denying they were paid. They are mostly for small amounts; I do not consider vouchers are absolutely necessary in the case of small sums, the evidence of the accounting party, if not shaken in cross-examination, being a sufficient voucher. See Leggatt v. Fogel, 13th June, 1903.

Items 1, 16, 76, 79, 98 and 100, amounting in all to $11 40, are for repairs to donkey cart and harness and for licences. All the legatees and heirs appear to have lived on Pln. Armitage, and the donkey and cart, I think, were used by all of them, including Sookdeo who is married to one of the heiresses, and although perhaps these amounts should not be charged in the executors' accounts, they may be allowed to stand as all the parties have all had the benefit of the expenditure.

Items 2 and 4 for telegrams, 42 cts., and 13, 31, 94 and 112 for stationery and stamps, $1 20 seem reasonable and may be allowed, especially as no charge is made in Mr. Wills' account under these heads.

Items 4, 19, 33, 45, 50, 54, 60, 68 and 72, wages of one Reeburg at $6 a month, amounting to $54 are not vouched. Reeburg appears to have been employed in the testator's life time as a groom. The testator died on the 17th September, 1903. Reeburg would be entitled, at any rate, to be paid by the estate for the month of September, 1903, (item 4). He was, apparently, continued in his employment after deceased's death as groom and general servant. Dookeran, however, says that he was his servant after his father's death and that he paid him $3 a month with clothes and food. O'Donoghue, Sagar, Baggarat and Christmas Hookumchand corroborate Dookeran as to Reeburg being his servant. Sookdeo swears he paid Reeburg. The carriage appears, however, to have belonged to the estate and it is stated Mr. Wills received $24 for carriage hire. Under these circumstances, I do not think Dookeran paid the whole of Reeburg's wages. He says he paid $3 a month, according to Sookdeo, his pay was $6 a month. I think Dookeran paid half and Sookdeo paid half and therefore one-half of the remaining items will only be allowed.

Items 5, 20, 34, 46, 51, 55, 61, 69, 73, 81, 82, 83, 91, 97, 101, 106, 108, 110 and 116 are payments to Mahabal (shepherd), at $3 a month, in all $57. Mahabal was employed by the testator in his life time. The estate would have to pay him for September (item 5). According to Dookeran, Mahabal continued in the employ of Sagar, Sookdeo and himself and he and Sagar fed and clothed him. I think he looked after the animals generally on the estate where all the heirs lived and they all had the advantage of his services. Although this item ought, perhaps, not properly to appear in the executors' accounts, and ought to be apportioned amongst the heirs, it really comes to the same thing, allowing the items to remain in the account, and I therefore allow them.

Items 7 and 22 for clerical services $4, cannot be allowed. The executor should either have performed these services himself or pay for them out of his commissions. Even in England, where executors are not allowed any remuneration as in this Colony, the executor cannot employ a solicitor "to do all those "ordinary things which an executor ought to do "himself, as, for instance, to write an ordinary letter. "If he employ a solicitor to do such matters, he "must pay him, but not out of the testator's estate." Harbin v. Darby, 28, Beav. 325.

Items 8, 18, 32, 44, 49, 53 and 59, wages of José Rodrigues, grass cutter, $5 a month. Dookeran says Rodrigues was his father's servant; that after his father's death Rodrigues wanted money. "I said I had none to give, so he left the estate altogether"; that he went away a week or two after testator's death. Sagar says Rodrigues left the estate a few weeks after the testator's death. Baggarat says the same. Christmas Hookumchund says Rodrigues went to Sagar for more than a month. Sookdeo evidently recollects nothing about the matter, he relies on his books, the original of which he has not produced. I cannot allow more than one month's wages as paid to Rodrigues.

Items 9, 17, 27, 42, 63, 66, 67, 104, 113, 119, 120 and 125, travelling expenses of Sookdeo, amounting to $93 44. There is nothing to show why Sookdeo had to go to town on the estate's business on these different occasions, nor are there any vouchers. It was perhaps necessary for him to go to make the declaration for estate's duty (item 17), but I cannot see that all this travelling at the expense of the estate was necessary. If he attended as a witness in Sagar v. Executors, on December 19th, 1903 (item 42) his taxed bill would be included in the costs. Items 63, 66 and 67 seem to show that he came to Town about some cattle case. The evidence is that there was no such case. I think $35 96 a reasonable sum to allow.

I think items 3 and 10 should be allowed.

Items 11, 15 and 71, pound fees, $2 08, I do not think should be allowed as there is nothing to show through whose fault the animals were taken to the pound. The executor has charged large amounts for cattle-minder, shepherd and groom.

Items 12, 40 and 79, repairing cottage at Hope town, $3 80. This cottage was specifically bequeathed but as the upkeep of the estate has been charged this item may also be allowed. The rent of the cottage has been credited in the account.

Item 16 is allowed—the bolts were used to repair the carriage which belonged to the estate and was sold for the benefit of the estate.

Items 23, 105, 114, 122 and 124, amounts paid to his co executor, Mr. Wills, amounting to $540. These should appear as a credit in Mr. Wills' account, only $460 is credited as received by Mr. Wills (item 6). The $80 must be credited in Mr. Wills' account.

Item 24—stamp on declaration for estate's duty is allowed.

Items 25, 30, 38, 75 and 78—amounting to $1 24 given, as stated by Sookdeo, to servants to encourage them to do their work willingly cannot be allowed.

Items 26, 29, 36, 41, 84, 102, 103 and 115, amounts paid repairing dams and fences at Pln. Armidale, amounting to $88 48. There are no vouchers for these items. I have no doubt some money was spent on keeping up the estate. This estate is bequeathed to all the heirs except Myra Bone, now Semple, but her son, Edric, has a share in the estate. All the heirs use the estate, and although the items should not properly appear in executors' accounts, I think something should be allowed for upkeep. Sagar admits Sookdeo spent $68 in digging the trench, but it was no use. I allow $75.

Items 28 and 43, cost of swearing affidavit and paying witnesses in case of Sagar v. Exors., $10 86, Judgment was given against Sagar in this matter with costs. These costs should have been recovered from Sagar, and cannot be charged in the executors' accounts. Sookdeo swears that his co-executor has been paid the costs in this matter.

Digitized by Google

Items 37 and 39 are allowed.

Items 48, 58, 80, 92, 107 and 118, salary of Sookdeo for the management of Pln. Armidale, at $60 per month. These items cannot be allowed. Sookdeo admits he only continued doing what he was doing in the testator's lifetime without pay. There was no agreement to pay this amount. The executor had no right to carry on the estate, nor can he make any profit out of the estate beyond his remuneration.

Item 57, building dam at Golden Grove, $2 56. The property at Golden Grove is bequeathed to Myra Bone. As the upkeep on Armidale has been allowed, I think on equitable grounds this may be allowed too.

Item 77 seems reasonable and is allowed.

Items 85 and 86 are properly vouched. It is for repairs done to the boat and work done in the testator's lifetime.

Items 88 and 90 cannot be allowed. There is nothing to show there was any necessity for the executor himself to go to New Amsterdam to settle the accounts.

Items 109, 111 and 117 are allowed. The cow-minder has been paid and all the heirs have had the benefit of his services.

Item 121 cannot be allowed. Jeetun sued the executors for her legacy and recovered judgment. The executors cannot charge against the estate any costs paid by them for resisting her claim.

The plaintiffs further seek to surcharge the defendants with certain sums on several items on the credit side of the account as under:—

Surcharges 1, 2, 3, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 22. I am not satisfied on the evidence that the sheep and goats were sold for more than is credited, or that the sum received was less than their real value.

Surcharges 4, 7, 12, 21, 24, 23. It is alleged these items should be increased, as the value of all the cows sold was $20 a head. The evidence does not support this. Taking the evidence of O'Donoghue, Baggarat, Beresford, Raggoo and Rawlins, and the receipts put in, the cattle sold averaged nothing like $20; under $12, I should say, and there is no suggestion that the prices were unfair. Counsel for the plaintiffs says that $14 would be a fair value.

Items 11, 12, 13 and 14, on credit side of the account, are the animals sold to Isaacs. Isaacs swears he paid $14 a head. Sagar and Evans say Isaacs paid $20 a head for 40 animals, and $35 a head for 8 oxen. I think the amounts charged in the account are correct.

Surcharge 29. It is sought to surcharge 19 head, alleged to have been sold to Hyderkhan. Hyderkhan says he bought 10 head, and this is admitted by Sookdeo. Sookdeo, however, says these 10 head were part of the cattle given to Dookeran, and he sold for Dookeran and gave him the money at the Fort Wellington Post Office, this Dookeran denies. The receipt is given by Sookdeo as for cattle belonging to the estate and not to Dookeran. The account must be surcharged with $130: value of these 10 head.

Surcharge 30. There is no evidence that any cattle were sold to John Wm. Isaacs.

Surcharge 31. Raggoo bought 3 head on 13th January, 1905, for $35, and the amount is duly credited in the account, item 31.

Surcharge 32. Dookeran purchased on 20th March, 1905, 5 head for $70, and this amount is duly credited, item 38. On the 3rd April he purchased 6 head for $66, according to the receipt of Sookdeo, which has been put in. This sum does not appear to be credited, and must be surcharged.

Surcharges 33 and 44. Christmas Hookumchand and Jack bought together. They purchased 5 head for $100 in June, 1904, which sum is duly credited, item 20. They also say they bought 8 other head but Jack admits that of these, 2 were Jeetun's, 1 Pool's and 1 Dookeran's. I am not satisfied that 4 other head belonging to the estate, were sold to them.

Surcharge 35. Baggarat and O'Donoghue bought cattle together, O'Donoghue says they bought 85 head for $1,108. Baggarat says 85 head for $1,120, between August, 1904, and January, 1905. Receipts by Sookdeo were put in, one to O'Donoghue, dated 19th January, 1905, for $50 for 5 head (this item is dealt with in No. 37); one to Bagarat, dated 5th September, 1904, for $135, for 11 head, and another to Baggarat, dated 12th September, 1904, for $110 for 9 head. None of these amounts are credited. Sookdeo says the cattle sold to Baggarat were Dookeran's and the money formed part of the money he gave to Dookeran at the Fort Wellington Post Office as mentioned before (29). The receipts are given by Sookdeo as for cattle belonging to the estate. O'Donoghue admits catching 30 head belonging to Dookeran and selling them, passing them in his Baggarat's and other names. Dookeran says "he can't remember" selling 30 head to O'Donoghue. The onus of proof is on the party seeking to surcharge. I am not satisfied that Baggarat bought more than the 20 head, which, I consider, should be credited to the estate.

Surcharge 36. There is no evidence of any cattle having been sold to Sookdeo.

Surcharge 37. Sookdeo's receipt shows 5 head of cattle sold to O'Donoghue for $50, on 19th January, 1905. not six head for $120 as stated on plaintiffs' behalf; this sum of $50 does not appear to be credited and must be surcharged.

Surcharge 38. Rawlins says he bought some cattle, but how many, for how much or when he does not seem to know. I am not satisfied any cattle were sold to Rawlins which have not been credited.

Surcharge 39. There is no evidence of any cattle being sold to Benjamin.

Surcharge 40. 21 head were sold to Beresford; 7 head on 27th March, 1905, for $70, these are credited, item 40; 9 on the 30th March for $95, this does not appear to be credited and must be surcharged; and 5 on the 3rd April for $63. There is an amount of $129 credited on 3rd April for 11 head sold and I think the 5 head are included.

Surcharge 41. Not proved.

Surcharge 42. There is nothing to show that the plaintiffs took over any cattle but those that have been sold and those remaining on estate. If there are other cattle of which, I have no doubt, they are still on the estate which has been given up to the heirs.

The surcharges 43, 44 and 45 appear to me to be questions arising in the action which have been reserved by the order of the 15th June, 1905.

The debit items in Sookdeo's account, leaving out commissions which will be settled after dealing with Mr. Wills' account, amount to ...$ 1,657 68, of this have been disallowed—

Dealing now with Mr. Wills' account,—

Items 1 and 5 are allowed. They are reasonable and I have no doubt were paid.

Item 4 is disallowed. The executor could have performed these duties himself; in fact Mr. Wills says he could have looked after the matter if he had not been engaged in Court. If he employs some one else he cannot pay out of the estate. Halbin v. Darby, 28 Barb., 325.

Item 8. $5 seems an exorbitant sum to pay for only witnessing a will. The executor has paid it, however, and I do not disallow it.

Item 9. Mrs. Semple admits having received this money, and it must be allowed.

Item 10 is allowed, although, in my opinion, it is very excessive, yet it has been paid.

Items 11, 12 and 13. The executors unsuccessfully contested the claim of Jeetun for an amount received by the testator as her agent, and also her claim for the legacy bequeathed to her. I do not consider they were justified in so doing, and they cannot charge the costs incurred by them in so doing against the estate. These items are disallowed.

Items 16 and 17. Sagar and Injuruth brought actions against the executors, which were dismissed with costs. Mr. Wills obtained orders from these parties to pay himself the costs incurred out of the share of the estate coming to them. I think these amounts can be charged in the accounts against these parties, and will be taken into account on a division of the estate.

Item 18. The retainer to counsel, $80, can be allowed, the action being one which I think the executors were justified in defending; but I cannot allow retainer to a solicitor, $40.

Digitized by Google

Items 19 and 20, retainer to counsel, $50, is allowed; retainer to solicitor, $15 and $25, are disallowed.

Item 22. No vouchers are laid over. I think a reasonable amount, say $35, should be allowed.

The surcharges sought to be made are:—

1. This is a question I consider reserved by the order.

2. It has been sworn there were two promissory notes by Mr. Wills to the testator, one for $100, but the amount of the other note does not appear to have been known. This is not denied by Mr. Wills, who did not go into the witness box. The plaintiffs seek to surcharge $125, which I allow.

3. This amount has not been received. It is item 17 of the account.

Items 4, 5, 6 and 7 are allowed. They have been sworn to and are not denied.

Items 8 and 9 I cannot allow. The amounts have not been charged against the estate and the costs, in my opinion, are payable by the defendants individually to Jeetun and have nothing to do with the estate. The amounts paid Mr. King, items 14 and 15, debit side, were on account of capital and can be charged against Jeetun individually in dividing the estate.

10. These are costs in this matter and will be dealt with by the Full Court.

11. The onus of proof of what cash was in the house lies on the plaintiffs. There is some vague evidence by Dookeran. Mrs. Semple say there was about $5 72 which sum I allow.

12. Is a question to be dealt with by the Full Court.

Commissions are chargeable on amounts received. I do not think commissions can be charged on $500 received from sale of schooner which was specifically devised,—there was no necessity to sell it. Nor are commissions chargeable for the sale of the cattle. The executors had no right, in my opinion, to carry on the estate. The estate, as far as relates to the cattle, is a "farm" within the meaning of the proviso to section 17 of the Inheritance Ordinance, 1887, and the commissions, if any are allowed, are under that proviso such as may be determined by the Court. Commission will therefore be allowed on items 1, 2, 3 and 4 of Mr. Wills' account $ 2,170 00

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,

5th December, 1905.

247.

THE following letter received from the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Georgetown is hereby published for general information, by order of the Governor.

By Command,
CHARLES T. COX,
Government Secretary.

No. 191.

THE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
Georgetown, Demerara,
5th December, 1905.

Sir,

I have the honour by direction of the President to inform you that at a Special General Meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held yesterday morning it was resolved :—

1. That the rates of wages per day of 10½ working hours paid to casual labourers on Georgetown wharves should remain at the rate at which they have been for many years notwithstanding the fall in value of the staple products of the Colony and reduced incomes and wages to all classes of the community, namely, forty-eight cents for boys and sixty-four cents for men, but that for parts of a day the rates to be as follows :—for the half day, twenty-four cents, and thirty-two cents respectively, for the quarter day twelve cents and sixteen cents respectively. Any time under a quarter to be paid as a quarter; any time over a quarter to be paid as a half; any time over a half to be paid as three-quarters; any time over three-quarters to be paid as a whole day. For night work, double pay on same lines as day work.

2. It has been represented that the labourers have certain grievances in the matter of consideration of complaints,—keeping of carts, &c., by employees. I am instructed to say that the Chamber will gladly fully consider these or any other real grievances that the men may have in that way, and endeavour to have same removed.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
HENRY G. WILLIAMS,
Assistant Secretary.

By His Excellency Sir FREDERIC MITCHELL HODGSON, Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of Saint Michael and Saint George, Governor and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of British Guiana, Vice-Admiral and Ordinary of the same, &c., &c., &c.

WHEREAS riots resulting in loss of life and destruction of property have occurred in the City of Georgetown arising out of the action of certain persons dissatisfied with the rates of wages paid to wharf labourers:

AND WHEREAS it has been represented to me that one cause of such dissatisfaction was the uncertainty of the amounts which can be earned by persons not in regular employment, but persons employed only for portions of a day:

AND WHEREAS I have been informed by the Chamber of Commerce of the City of Georgetown in a letter dated this day of the rates of wages which employers of labour are prepared to pay, and of the fixed payments which they propose to make for parts of a day, thus removing uncertainty in respect thereof:

I have therefore caused the said letter to be published for general information concurrently herewith:

And I do earnestly advise all persons who have ceased work to resume their lawful occupation:

And I do hereby make it known that all persons who prevent or attempt to prevent any other persons whether by force or threats of violence from exercising his lawful trade, business or occupation, are guilty of an offence punishable by fine or imprisonment:

And I do hereby further make it known that the law made and provided in that behalf will be rigorously enforced and all persons acting contrary thereto will be prosecuted; and that all necessary measures will be taken for the protection of all persons who may be interfered with or molested in exercising their lawful trade, business or occupation:

And I do further most earnestly call upon and enjoin all peaceable loyal subjects of His Majesty to avoid all riotous and disorderly assemblies to the end that they may not suffer or be injured in any measures which it may be necessary to take to restore and preserve peace and order in this Colony.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 28TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1905.

F. G. COZIER

L. KNIGHT.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $206, due on a promissory note made on 15th July, 1900, and payable two months after date with interest thereon at the rate of 6 per centum per annum.

The defence is a denial of the making of the promissory note and of the demand, and an averment that there was no consideration, that if her signature appears as the maker to any note (and the same is denied) the same was obtained by fraud. The defendant also says that the plaintiff asked her to witness a note for him on which he was borrowing money from one Harvey, and that such signature was placed on such note as a witness and not as a maker, and that such signature as a witness was made long after the 16th July, 1900. The defendant also denies having borrowed $206 on that date or at any time, or that she owed any money at all.

These statements are all denied in the reply.

It appears that the plaintiff and the defendant were on intimate terms. The defendant had two children by the plaintiff; one of the children is 5 years and 10 months of age, the other is dead. The plaintiff is a married man and was living with his wife in December, 1898, or January, 1899, when the intimacy with defendant began. The defendant is a widow. The plaintiff still lives with his wife.

The defendant in the early part of 1899 was living with her daughter in Light Street, Albert Town, in a house of her own, which she sold in June of that year for $190, and with the proceeds purchased another house in East Street for $175. The house needed repairs and an engagement was entered into with plaintiff to do certain repairs for $36, he leasing the front part of the lot for a period of 3 years at a rental of $12 a year, a receipt being given for the 3 years in advance.

The father of the plaintiff, a carpenter, was paid $26 for his share of the work. Various other sums were also, it is said, lent and paid for materials and to workmen amounting in all as detailed to $137 72, or thereabouts.

When the house was repaired, the plaintiff, his wife, and defendant lived in it, and continued to do so until plaintiff's wife and defendant had a dispute, when defendant left the house; this was apparently at the end of 1899. In February or March, 1900, the house in East Street was sold for $310, and the purchase money was handed to the plaintiff, who almost immediately opened an auction mart. This, however, did not prove a success, and he went to Trinidad on 18th November, 1902, to try his luck in that colony. This venture was also a failure, and he returned to Georgetown in January, 1903. During his absence in Trinidad several letters of an affectionate nature passed between plaintiff and defendant, in none of which is there any mention of money owing by defendant to the plaintiff. In one of the letters, dated 12th January, 1903, the plaintiff wrote:—"I must inform you that you must not expect any-"thing, as I have nothing as yet, but will let you "know how things are working when we meet." Again, in a letter dated 5th December, 1902, after dilating on the advantages of Trinidad, plaintiff wrote:—"If you can raise a little cash you will be "alright this side." On 3rd January, 1903, he wrote: "How about the sale of the property? You must not "sign until you get your cash in your hand." This related to some property in which defendant had an interest through her father. Further on in the letter he wrote:—"If I succeed it will be also your success, "so you must pray for me to succeed. Keep well "and hold on. Try not to write distressful letters, as "they bother my mind when I receive them, and "prevent my energy in business."

During this time the defendant seems to have had a hard struggle, living on her earnings from making chocolate. The Mart had been levied on and the things advertised for sale.

After the return of the plaintiff from Trinidad the friendly relations still continued for a time, and the plaintiff obtained further sums of money from the defendant, but there was what appeared to be a final rupture in October, 1903, when the defendant says she drove the plaintiff away. Notwithstanding this, however, she wrote asking him to meet her on the 26th January, 1904. Eventually the defendant summoned the plaintiff for the support of the child and obtained an order from the Magistrate. This order was not obeyed, and he was called upon to show cause, after which a letter of demand was sent for the amount of the promissory note now sued on.

The facts as detailed above give an insight into the relations between the parties, and forms the basis of one of the defences which is that the defendant was so under the influence of the plaintiff that it was possible for her to sign her name to the promissory note under even the peculiar circumstances which she details. The story she gives as to this particular transaction is as follows: One day after her sister had sued Cozier for a debt of $55, she went to the mart and Cozier said to her, "By the way, I want you to witness this note for me." She said, "for what?" He said, "don't you know your sister has sued me and got judgment for $55 and costs, and I owe some other debts, and before they begin to sue me I am borrowing some money to pay them, for if people sue me it will humbug me in the business." He took up the paper which he had said he wanted her to sign and read:—"Two months after date I promise to pay F. W Harvey the sum of two hundred and six dollars." He read no more, and when she said, "let me see it," he said, "what for?" She said, "I can read it for myself," to which he replied, "you women are too damned inquisitive. Do you think I would defraud you. If I defraud you I would be defrauding myself and my child. If you mean to sign the damn thing, sign it and let me go." Defendant says she didn't feel very pleased at the way he was damning, and said, "where must I sign it?" Cozier put his finger and showed her, but as she went to sign he said:—"Wait, wait, your glove will soil it; it has to go before a gentleman." He then put his blotting paper over it and she signed her name. He then sent for a stamp, which he put on the note and told her to sign the stamp, telling her it was her place as a witness to do so. She then put L.K. on the stamp, but no date, as he said that would do. This was on the 24th August, whereas the note is dated 16th July, 1900.

The plaintiff says the defendant wrote the body of the note herself, and in order to test her she wrote in Court a dictated copy.

On comparing the handwritings it seems to me clear that the defendant did write the promissory note herself. Her statement probably refers to another note payable to Harvey, for the plaintiff admits owing money to Harvey, but says he paid it out of his own funds. I have, however, to consider the other question, that of consideration, and with regard to that I am satisfied that there was none. The evidence shows clearly that the note does not represent the outlay on the house in East Street, and that most of the proceeds of the sale of that property found its way into the pockets of the plaintiff.

I give judgment for the defendant with costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

FRANCIS VIEIRA

FRANCIS VIEIRA.

The plaintiff, who is the son of the defendant, claims that the defendant be condemned to pass the transport of one undivided half part or share of and in lot 25, part of Plantation Blankenburg, with one undivided half part or share in and to the buildings thereon, on the plaintiff agreeing to pay half the costs of the transport or to repay to the plaintiff the sum of $200, the purchase money paid and $30 as damages for the breach of the agreement to transport and costs.

The necessary vaenia agendi has been obtained.

This is one of those cases which depend entirely and absolutely on who is to be believed, the plaintiff or the defendant. The whole matter at issue being whether an amount of $145, which, it is alleged, was paid, was so paid or not.

Both parties agree that an arrangement was made to sell the property in question for the sum of $200. The plaintiff says he took over and paid a debt of the defendant to one Wong for $55 which is admitted and paid $145 in cash. In support of this, he produces a receipt, which, admittedly, was not stamped at the time it was written, but which, the plaintiff says, was stamped before it was delivered to him, that is later on in the day.

The person who wrote the receipt says, when he asked if the money was paid, he received a reply from the defendant that it was alright. The plaintiff says he paid the $145 the night before to his father in their house, no one was present. The defendant, on the other hand, says no money was paid at all, that the arrangement was that $50 were to be paid to the sister of plaintiff and that a promissory note was made out to be given to her. From the evidence, there is no doubt that a promissory note was written at the same time as the receipt and on the same half sheet of foolscap paper, but the plaintiff says this was a promissory note for the amount due to Wong which was destroyed when Wong was paid. It is a very difficult matter to decide who is speaking the truth.

I cannot believe that a man like the defendant would sign a receipt for the money unless he had received it, nor does it seem at all likely that if he got a promissory note for an amount to be paid to his daughter that he would not have retained it more especially when he had given a receipt for an amount which included the sum to be paid to his daughter.

The witness Oliviera who wrote the receipt says the plaintiff said he would give a note after the sister was mentioned and after he had said he would pay Matthew Wong. But he left before the note was written and can throw no light on what the note was.

It is not improbable that as the debt due to Wong had not been paid the defendant should require something to secure the payment of this debt and it is quite possible that this something took the form of a promissory note which was destroyed when the debt was settled, that is on the day following the giving of the receipt.

The stamp on the receipt bears the initials F. V. with the date 21.8.05, whereas it should be 21.7.05. This is an error more probably made by the defendant than the plaintiff. The defendant is not corroborated when he says he informed Oliveira the next day that the money was not paid, for that witness distinctly says he was not told so for a week or two afterwards, that is subsequently to the settlement of Wong's debt. Nor is he corroborated in his statement that the receipt was written before he was called in. Again, Oliveira could not have told him Wong had been paid if this debt was mentioned at the time and the plaintiff said he would pay it.

On the whole of the evidence, I think the story of the plaintiff is the correct one.

I therefore give judgment for the plaintiff for $208 71, being $200 for money paid and $8 71 paid by the plaintiff for transport fees. I give no damages but I give costs.

JOHN E. HEWICK, J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 29TH DAY OF NOVEMBER, 1905.

HELEN E. JULY, Appellant,

versus

IRENE NEBLETT, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District, who dismissed a claim against the respondent for a debt due by her husband to the appellant, it being alleged that she, the respondent, had adiated, on behalf of her children, the estates of her husband, J. R. Neblett, and of his father, R. B. Neblett.

The grounds of appeal are, shortly:

(1) That the adiation of R. B. Neblett's estate was an adiation on behalf of the minors in re their father's estate.

2. That having claimed per stirpes of their deceased father on their grandfather's estate, they are liable for the debts of their father through whom they claim and that they cannot retain the benefits and repudiate the debts.

The memorandum of reason for decision is to the effect that there is no proof that Irene Neblett adiated the estate of her husband, J. R. Neblett, who predeceased his father, R. B. Neblett, and this being so, she is not liable.

With regard to the adiation of the grandfather's estate being an adiation of the father's estate, according to Voet Bk. xxxviii. Tit. 18, r. 4, if the father and grandfather be both dead leaving a grandson surviving and the father had not adiated the inheritance of his father (the grandfather), the grandson may reject the inheritance of his father and adiate that of his grandfather, or reject that of the grandfather and adiate that of the father. A grandson may succeed his grandfather after he has rejected the inheritance of his father who had previously died, or after he has been for just cause disinherited by his father.

This clearly shows that adiation of a grandfather's estate is not per se an adiation of the father's estate.

An inheritence is a succession to the general rights and obligations of the deceased (Censura Forensis, Part I, Book iv, Chapter xxx.) Children of the first degree are considered for their benefit to obtain the right of inheritance effectually and tacitly from the moment of the death . . . but in order to prejudice them and make them liable for the debts of the estate it is not sufficient that they are the children of the deceased, but it must be further proved that they have entered upon his estate and inheritance or have conducted themselves as heirs; for a creditor who must base his action upon the adiation or interference with the estate must prove the same, to rebut which a simple denial is sufficient (Van Leewen Vol. 1, page 405).

There was no proof of the adiation of the estate of J. R. Neblett.

The Magistrate was right in his decision and I dismiss the appeal with costs.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

IN INSOLVENCY.

THIS 6TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

Re FELIX ARTHUR ROMNEY AND WALTER DYMOCK VAN NIEUWENHOVEN BARBOUR, TRADING IN PARTNERSHIP UNDER THE NAME, STYLE AND FIRM OF ROMNEY AND BARBOUR, INSOLVENTS.

This is an application made by and on behalf of Nisida Barbour for an order reversing the decision of the Official Receiver in respect of the proof filed by her against the insolvent estate of Romney and Barbour, and for a further order directing the said Official Receiver to admit the said claim in full to rank for dividend against the said estate.

The grounds of the application are shortly that Nisida Barbour, at the request of her husband and with the full knowledge and consent of Felix Arthur Romney, transferred to the Colonial Bank certain Hand-in-Hand Scrip of the face value of $3,232 as security for advances which she then understood had been made and were to be made to her husband for the purposes of the partnership business then carried on and that the proceeds of the scrip which was sold by the Bank together with $96 interest were appropriated by the Bank in reduction of the debt due by the firm and that the said sum of $3,328 is due to her by the firm as no money was advanced by the Colonial Bank to her husband as the capital to be brought by him into the partnership, but was advanced to meet bills drawn by the partnership.

The grounds of rejection by the Official Receiver were shortly that the firm of Romney & Barbour was not indebted to Nisida Barbour and that the scrip was transferred to the Colonial Bank to enable Barbour to obtain a sum of money which he had agreed with Romney was to be his capital in the firm.

Digitized by Google

To put the matter concisely the whole question is whether Nisida Barbour lent the money to her husband or to the firm of Romney & Barbour. It appears that in December, 1903, Romney and Barbour contemplated the starting of a business in co-partnership and as neither of them had any available capital Romney interviewed the sub-manager of the Colonial Bank in New Amsterdam with a view to opening an account for the contemplated firm by means of lodging certain securities which could be obtained. The agreement between Romney and Barbour was that each should contribute $3,000 as his share of the capital of the firm. Barbour was to raise this amount by means of some Hand-in-Hand scrip belonging to his wife and Romney was to mortgage a house, of which he had not completed the purchase, for $1,500 and add to this another $1,500 from other sources. Romney was only able to promise the mortgage on the house as security, and on his again interviewing Mr. Breen an arrangement was come to by which the firm would be allowed to draw to the extent of $4,500 on the strength of the scrip being lodged with the Bank, and an undertaking being given for the mortgage. Barbour obtained the scrip from his wife, together with an authority for its transfer to the Bank, both of which he handed to the manager. This must have been about the 6th of January, 1904, for the authority is of that date. The transfer was effected in February.

Mr. Breen says Romney said his own capital was to be $1,500 and Barbour's $3,000. This was in consequence of Romney being unable to then raise the other $1,500, as his proposal to give a mortgage on the stock when it was acquired was not entertained. When the Bank obtained possession of the scrip an account was opened in the name of the firm, but no sum was credited. Mr. Breen says he had the account opened in that way to save the interest for the firm. No personal account was opened for either Romney or Barbour.

The first use of the authority to draw was to obtain $599 by a cheque dated 23rd January, 1904, to complete the payment for the house which Romney was to mortgage for $1,500.

This mortgage was carried out and the $599 debited to the private account of Romney in the books of the firm, so that his contribution was as a matter of fact only $910.

After this the firm commenced operations, the first transaction being the purchase of flour, evidently on the 8th February,

No money was drawn till after the transfer of the scrip, with the exception of the cheque for $599. The flour purchased was sold from the store of Diogo Gomes, as Romney and Barbour only opened their doors to the public on 1st April. This was evidently because the formal articles of partnership were only signed on 1st March. In these articles no mention is made of the amount of capital of the firm.

The account in the Bank went on, the overdrafts varying according to the payments made in, but being generally well up to the arranged for amount.

When the insolvency took place it was $4,464 62.

The interest on the scrip collected by the Bank was credited to the firm, who credited it to Barbour, he paying it over to his wife.

In consequence of some advice given to Mr. Breen as to the incapacity of a woman to be a security, he called on Barbour to get his wife to execute an act of renunciation. This was done on the 3rd October, 1904.

In the document, it is declared by Nisida Barbour that she had been requested by her husband, Walter Dymock van Nieuwenhoven Barbour, and had consented to become surety to the Colonial Bank for the due payment and discharge of the sum of three thousand two hundred dollars, current money of the colony of British Guiana, being so much money lent and advanced by the said Bank to her husband and had, on 5th February, transferred certain scrip to the Bank to be held as collateral security for the repayment of the said sum of $3,200. She renounced certain benefits and exceptions in law, etc., etc.

Eventually, on the firm becoming insolvent, the Bank realised the scrip, the proceeds of which together with one dividend of 8% were appropriated towards the payment of the overdraft of the firm.

A statement of claim was sent to the Official Receiver of the amount due to the Colonial Bank. This claim showed an indebtedness of $2,342 96 after deducting proceeds of scrip and one dividend it included $1,205 34 for promissory notes discounted but not due. Against this indebtedness there was the mortgage.

The promissory notes must have been met for the closing account carries out the indebtedness at $1,136 62 which is balanced by the sale of the house property.

According to the statement of affairs of the firm, filed on 3rd August, 1905, there was a deficiency of $2,820 22. Amongst the fully secured creditors appears the Colonial Bank, the security being the scrip and mortgage. In the individual statement of affairs of Barbour, his wife appears as a preferential creditor for cash lent to the extent of $3,290, the amount of the scrip; including this his deficiency is $3,593 53.

Romney, in his individual statement of affairs, shows an excess of assets on liabilities of $1,829 41, the result of his having a property in Smyth's Town, New Amsterdam, value at $2,000.

It is interesting to note that during the short career of the firm, the partners drew out amounts more than equalling the capital, far more than the partnership agreement authorised. There can be no question that the original arrangement between Romney and Barbour was that they were to start the business with a capital of $6,000, each contributing an equal share, Barbour's share to be obtained by his borrowing from his wife an amount sufficient to meet it. This was the verbal arrangement, but no mention of capital was made in the written articles of partnership signed on 1st March, 1904.

There is no question also that the Colonial Bank allowed an overdraft to the firm of Romney and Barbour, when it started. The securities were taken or given to the Bank by the partners individually on the joint account. A partnership did result between the parties but the fact that the contribution of capital was unequal, would not affect the division equally of the profits as was provided for. As Vice Chancellor Wigram remarked in Dale v. Hamilton 5 Hare 393, "If one man has skill and wants capital to make that skill available, and another has capital and wants skill and the two agree that the one shall provide capital and the other skill, it is perfectly clear that there is a good consideration for the agreement on both sides, and it is impossible for the Court to measure the quantum of value. The parties must decide for themselves."

In this case, Barbour was contented to share equally the profits he hoped would result from the combination, although his capital was greater than that of Romney's at the time.

The capital of the firm even by Barbour's own showing was to be $6,000 and up to the last almost, he hoped that Romney would be able to raise the other $1,500.

The scrip was undoubtedly borrowed by Barbour to supply his share of the capital and the knowledge and consent of Romney only went to the extent of accepting the capital so raised as Barbour's contribution. There was no authority by Romney to borrow the $3,000 on his account, this is clear from the very fact that he contributed some amount of capital on his own account Barbour, in letting Romney in with a smaller capital than he himself, supplied was a matter they decided between themselves.

The whole arrangement with Nisida Barbour was carried on by her husband and herself. Romney knew of the borrowing and informed the sub-manager of the Bank what the individual proportion of capital was. As to the way in which the account was opened Mr. Breen says, "The account of Romney "and Barbour was not placed in credit of the $4,500, "this was by my direction. If I wished I could have "credited Romney and Barbour with the amounts as "shown by the securities."

There is no doubt that the manager of the Bank treated the overdraft as money lent to the firm, as it undoubtedly was in the account, but the question is not whether the Bank could claim the debt due by the firm to it, but whether a person who has lent money to an individual partner to enable him to raise his share of the capital can claim against the firm.

The position of affairs is this:—Barbour and Romney go to the Bank and say to the manager: We two contemplate starting a business in partnership. Barbour is contributing a capital at once of $3,000, and Romney $1,500. Later on Romney will, if he can manage it, raise another $1,500. In the meantime we wish to commence operations. Will you, on the securities we offer, that is, Hand-in-Hand scrip of Barbour for $3,200 and a mortgage on Romney's house, let us open an account? The manager replies, Yes, on getting the securities, or, at any rate, part of them in my hands, you can open an account and draw to the extent of $4,500, but I will not credit you with any given sum. When you draw cheques they will be honoured up to the limit, so that you will only have to pay interest according to what you overdraw.

By this method there was not a loan of any specified amount to the firm, such loan being determined as made, and interest charged accordingly.

As was stated in the case of Benjamin v. Benjamin, 1 E. D.C., 281, by Berry, Judge President:—"Surely "a man may borrow money which at the time of "borrowing he announces his intention to give to "another, and if he gives it to that other he would "nevertheless remain the debtor for the amount."

There is no question that Barbour borrowed from his wife the money to form his share of the capital and that he, the husband, was solely responsible, the fact that the money so supplied was brought in by him as agreed will not render the firm liable.

In Dickinson v. Valpy, 18 B. & C., 142, per Parker, J.:—"If a person agree to become a partner at a "future time with others, provided other persons "agree to do the same, and advance stipulated "portions of capital, or provided other previous con- "ditions are performed, he gives no authority at all "to any other individual until all those conditions "are performed."

Here no partnership existed until a stipulated capital was advanced, and it was only on opening an account and being in a position to draw money with which to operate that the partnership actually began. All acts prior to this by either partner would be unauthorised so far as the firm was concerned. Barbour never held himself out, even to his wife, as a partner in an already constituted partnership. He certainly did not do so to the public.

In Fisher v. Taylor, 2 Hare, 223, during the course of his judgment Vice Chancellor Sir James Wigram remarked: "Advances of money to carry on the transactions of an established concern may be good to bind the firm, though obtained by one partner only; but suppose a concern not established, is there any implied authority in one partner to bind his co-partner by bills or otherwise to raise capital? Upon principle I should say clearly not."

The case of Greenslade v Dower, 7, B. & C. 635, was quoted in support of this principle.

The difficulty in this case has arisen from the desire of the manager of the Bank to save the firm or the individual partners from the interest chargeable if the whole amount of the overdraft was placed in credit.

On the facts I have no doubt that the money represented by the scrip was borrowed by Barbour from his wife for the purpose of raising his share of capital before the partnership came into existence, and on the authorities quoted I think Nisida Barbour has no claim against the firm.

I dismiss the application with costs.

Dos SANTOS, Defendant.

The plaintiff, in this case, claims on behalf of himself and his children, (1) an inventory of the immovable property belonging to the late Antony Nobrega and his wife Mary Nobrega, and of the moneys on deposit in the name of the said A. Nobrega, in the Banks in this colony at the time of his death, (2) an account of the rents of the immovable property received by the defendant since the death of the said Mary Nobrega, and of the interest on moneys so deposited as aforesaid, received by the said Mary Nobrega in her lifetime and by the defendant since her death and (3) payment and delivery of whatever money and other property may be found payable and deliverable to him.

The plaintiff bases his claim on the grounds that his father was a brother of the late A. Nobrega, that he and his children and one Maria de J. Nobrega, alleged to be a sister of the late A. Nobrega, are the only relatives or family of the testator's living at the time of his death, and as such became under his will, dated 22nd April, 1879, entitled on the death of the said Mary Nobrega to one-half of their immovable property existing at the date of the testator's death and of the moneys deposited as aforesaid at that time. The defendant was the second husband of the said Mary Nobrega and is sued as being, under her will dated 8th May, 1896, her sole heir and executor of that will and also substituted executor of the will of A. Nobrega, of which she was sole executrix.

The testator's will is not clear in its terms, but the correct construction of it, in our opinion, is that under it and in the events which have happened, the testator's family have acquired the ownership of one-half of the common property of the testator and his wife, subject to a restraint on alienation out of the family. We so think for the following reasons:—

The testator, at the beginning of his will, speaks of it as being the will of himself and of his wife, and although the provision set out in the Statement of Claim commences with a gift of one-half of the common property to her, the following words stating that it is her wish that after death the property should be for the families of both of them, not to be sold but the income to be divided equally between the families, appear more applicable to the whole common property than to his one-half only, as it is difficult to see why the testator or his wife should have wished one-half only of the common property to be after her death for the benefit, not of his family, but of the families of both the alienation of the other half being (if that construction is adopted) left unfettered and the persons who might eventually acquire that half thus left, so far as the testator could effect that object, able to defeat his wife's wish even as to his own one-half by taking proceedings for partition. The presumption that a testator only deals with his own share in property held in common with another, when mentioning or referring to such property in his will, is of little (if any) weight when it is the common property of himself and his wife (Voet xxx, 23: Schorer's note clxi. on Grotius Introd. II. 22, 38), and in the present instance that presumption cannot outweigh the indication of the testator's intention supplied by the words of the will. It is therefore we think clear that the testator was not dealing with his share only of the common property, but that at any rate all the landed or immovable property held in common was disposed of by his will.

The words of the will are sufficient to impose a prohibition of alienation; and the reason for imposing and the persons to benefit by that prohibition are sufficiently indicated to create a tacit fideicommissum (Van Leeuw. Com. III., 8, 6; Voet, Ad Pand. xxxvi. 1, 7 & 27) in favour of the respective "families," i. e., next of kin or heirs ab intestato, (Voet xxxvi. 1. 30, Sande De prohib. alien vi. 15), of the testator and his wife after the death of his wife, such heirs taking subject to the prohibition of alienation.

It has not been seriously contested that the effect of the will is as above stated, so far as the landed or immovable property is concerned, but it is contended that the cash money in the Bank stands in a different position. We do not agree with this contention. The words of the will directing the interest to be divided between "both our families" point to the testator having intended to deal with all the cash in the Bank just as he had dealt with all the immovable property and also show that he did not intend his wife to take more than a life interest in his half under the gift previously made to her; the interest is required to be divided between the same parties and in the same shares, as the rents and income of the landed property; the gift of the income or interest of the money to the families of the testator and his wife no mention being made of the capital, comes within the rule that a gift by will of the usufruct of a thing, in the absence of any direction as to the ownership, is deemed a gift of the ownership (Van Leeuw Com. III. S. 8. cf. Eng. rule as to indefinite gifts of income only: Theob. on Wills, 3rd ed. pp 351-2 and cases there cited); and the direction that the capital shall not be drawn out but shall remain on interest, the interest only being divided, is tantamount to a prohibition of alienation given for the benefit of the families who were to enjoy the interest. We therefore think the capital of this money passes to the same persons as the landed property, the interest being enjoyable by the same persons as enjoy the income of the immovable property.

In the present case as the testator's heirs ab intestato, at the date of his death appear to have been the same as those who were his heirs ab intestato, at the date of his wife's death, and as the present action is brought to obtain payment and delivery only of what belongs to the testator's family, it is unnecessary to determine whether the effect of the provisions of the will is to vest the inheritance in the families of the testator and his wife subject to a usufruct given to his wife, or to vest the inheritance in his wife subject to a fideicommissary sub-titution of his and her families on his wife's death. It is also unnecessary to determine at this time and for the purpose of this action, to whom the property in question will go on the death of the testator's and testatrix heirs, ab intestato, or as to the limits within which the prohibition against alienation must be confined, as it is in any case binding on the first takers.

The testators wife having accepted and enjoyed the benefits given her by the testator's will must be held to have elected to take under and not in opposition to it and therefore could not by will alter the effect of testator's will and consequently his will cannot now be set aside as to what was originally her share of the common property, (cf. Oosthuysen v Oosthuysen, 1 Buc. 51.) Therefore the construction of the will being such as has been stated, the testator's family (as already said) are in our opinion entitled to one-half of the immovable property and of the cash in the Bank, which were the common property of the testator and testatrix, subject to the restraint on alienation imposed by the will.

It is, however, objected that the suit is defective in respect of parties, that all the persons interested in the determining of the meaning of the testator's will, are not before the Court, and that therefore the Court should abstain from giving any decision in the matter. No doubt, if the evidence as to the testator's family is believed, one member of that family, vizt., his unmarried sister, is not a party to these proceedings. Her claim is, however, of the same kind and not adverse to that of the plaintiff's, and for the purpose of determining the question raised, he, in our opinion, sufficiently represents her and all the class of those who claim as members of the testator's family. Also the plaintiff's father having died before the testator, the fact that his widow (i.e., the plaintiff's mother) survived the testator's widow, is immaterial, since she (i.e., the plaintiff's mother) could not take any interest under the testator's will, not being a blood relation of his (Van Leeuw. Com. III. 8. 6; Voet. xxxvi. 1.30) and her husband died before he acquired any interest. The only other persons who can be regarded as interested in the determination of the question, are the testatrix' heirs, ab intestato, and the defendant who is sole heir and executor under her will. But as the plaintiff's claim is not to the whole of the property dealt with by the testator's will, and the right of the testatrix's family to the other half, depends on the construction contended for by the plaintiff being adopted and is admitted by him, the absence of the heirs ab intestato, of the testatrix, is not a bar to the Court's effectually and completely adjudicating upon and settling all the questions raised in this action (O. xiv. R. 13, Rules of Court, 1909) between the plaintiff and the defendant.

In the present case, the testator himself is the person to whom relationship was to be proved, and therefore, is of necessity a member of the family, the other members of which have to be determined (Smith v. Tebbitt L. R. 1 P. & M. 354). He is proved not only by the evidence of the plaintiff who is an interested party, but also by that of D. de Jesus, to have stated more than once who his relations were, naming them, and to have on several occasions said that the plaintiff and his (the testator's) sister in Madeira were the only surviving relatives he had; and this evidence is in many details corroborated by that of Anna Fernandes, who is nearly 70 years of age and who came from the same part of Madeira as the testator and knew him and other members of his family. Neither D. deJesus nor A. Fernandes has any interest in the question under consideration. We think this evidence taken altogether establishes that the plaintiff and the testator's sister, Maria, are the sole members of the testator's family now entitled under his will.

No evidence has been given of adiation of the testatrix's estate by the defendant as heir under her will. The plaintiff can therefore obtain an order on the defendant only as executor of her will and as substituted executor of the will of the testator, and as argued by his counsel the account must be limited to rents, interest and moneys which have been received by him or have come to his hands since the testatrix's death. We think he must also furnish, so far as he is able to do so, an inventory of the immovable property of the testator and his wife and of the moneys on deposit in any Bank or Banks in the names or name of them or either of them at the date of the testator's death, showing which (if any) of them were drawn out by his wife after his death.

The further consideration of the action is adjourned and the question of costs reserved.

The information before the Court is insufficient to show who are the members of the testatrix' family entitled under the testator's will. It is desirable in the interests of all parties that they should be discovered and brought before the Court so that the whole property and not merely the interest of the testator's family therein should be dealt with in the final order made in this action and thus expense saved and the Court hopes that steps will be taken to effect this.

(REVIEW OF TAXATION OF COSTS.)

THIS 9TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

G. R. VAUGHAN
and
JOHN AUGUSTUS RICHARDS.

The plaintiff seeks in reality a disallowance of the Bill of Costs of the defendant which has been taxed by the Taxing Officer.

Pleadings were closed in the action, but no application was made by either party to have it placed on the hearing list. According to O. XXXII., r. 5, this resulted, after the lapse of six months, in the action being deemed deserted and incapable of being proceeded in to any effect until an order of revivor had been made by the Court. Such order of revivor must be applied for within a further period of six months, after which the action shall be deemed altogether abandoned and incapable of being revived.

From this it is clear that an action does not become altogether abandoned till the lapse of a period of twelve months from the time it is ripe for hearing and up to that time any party can apply for an order of revivor. On considering rule 5 of Order XXXII. it seems to me that it points clearly to the contention that if after the defendant has had up to the period of twelve months from the time the action is ripe for hearing, to exercise his option of placing it on the hearing list and does not do so, the action will be deemed altogether abandoned not only by plaintiff but by the defendant also. The option by the defendant is exercisable after ten days from the time when the action is ripe for hearing, and if he does not exercise his option it is evidence that he does not insist on the hearing. By refraining from the exercise of his option he abandons his right which include costs.

In the case of an opposition when no action is brought within the time limited, a Judge may direct that the opposition be deemed deserted and abandoned on the production to him of a certificate of the Registrar that no action has been commenced (Part II., O. II. r. 7). Costs are granted in such an event on the same principle as in default of pleading costs following the event. In both of these an application is made to a judge, but when there is a non-entry on the hearing list after the plaintiff has failed to make the entry and the defendant does not exercise his option, the action is deemed ipso facto deserted. The distinction lies in this and the defendant who has lain by is not entitled to any costs.

On my directing the attention of counsel to the fact that the proper procedure was to apply for costs, such application was made. I have therefore dealt with the whole question. I disallow all costs, each party to pay his own costs of this review.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

THIS 12TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

PATCHEA
versus
MAUGHAN AND INSANALLY.

The plaintiff claims the sum of $1,000 (with interest) alleged to be due on a promissory note, dated 21st July, 1902, and payable three months after date made by the defendants jointly and severally in favour of the plaintiff. The defendant Maughan alone defends, and his defence is (1.) A denial of the note.

2. That assuming he made the note (which, however, is denied.)—

(a.) It was agreed between the plaintiff and defendant that the plaintiff would not sue on the said promissory note.

(b.) It was, in like manner, agreed as a condition precedent to the bringing of this action, that other action or actions should first be brought against the defendants in their capacity as co-partners carrying on business under the name, style and firm of "The West Indian Match Company," and the condition precedent has not been fulfilled.

3. That the plaintiff has never given nor the defendant received from her any consideration for the said promissory note.

In her reply, the plaintiff admits that she agreed not to sue on the said promissory note or on any renewals thereof, but says that such agreement was without consideration and was also made on the implied conditions, that the defendants would carry on the said business for the purpose of starting which the said money was lent by the plaintiff, at least until the said money was repaid and that the same would be carried on at a profit, as well as on the express conditions mentioned in the said agreement, dated 21st July, 1904, and that the defendants have ceased to carry on their said business, and so far as they have carried on the same, the said business was carried on at a loss. The defendants have, moreover, failed to carry out the conditions mentioned in the said agreement.

From the evidence given, it appears that the defendant, Maughan, who had acquired a knowledge of match making, when he left his employment at the match factory at Vreed-en-Hoop, desired to start a factory of his own. Possessing some pieces of the necessary machinery he approached Goolamally (with whom plaintiff lived) with a view to obtain money for the purpose of purchasing other machinery and goods with which to equip the contemplated factory. Goolamally, who was desirous of settling the said defendant up in business, sent Maughan to the plaintiff who agreed to advance the money. Maughan says he had exhausted his own capital of five hundred dollars or so.

Money was advanced at various times, commencing on 21st January, 1904, of which Insanally kept an account. The total in May, 1904, was $1,055 71 according to the book produced.

A piece of land was bought at Agricola Village, East Bank, Demerary, and a house purchased and re-erected there. The erection of the Match Factory was proceeded with and on the 21st July, 1904, an agreement was entered into between the plaintiff and the two defendants who are stated to be carrying on business in co-partnership under the name, style and firm of the West Indian Match Company at Agricola.

This agreement sets out that whereas the plaintiff had lent and advanced to the defendants, the sum of $1,000, the receipt of which was acknowledged, for the purpose of starting a factory for the manufacture of matches, the re-payment of the $1,000 was to be in accordance with the terms.

1. The defendants were to sign a promissory note jointly and severllay in favour of the plaintiff for three months from the date of the agreement, such note to be renewed at the end of every three months.

2. The plaintiff agreed to accept and the defendants to make payments on account of this promissory note by instalments, such instalments to be paid out of the profits (if any) of the said business either monthly or quarterly.

3. The plaintiff further agreed not to endorse or negotiate or sue on any of the promissory notes given for repayment of the aforesaid loan.

4. The plaintiff, to have the option of appointing an agent for the sale of matches and to furnish the defendants monthly with copies of accounts, and after the payment of all sums due for supplies had for the working of the said factory, was to deduct one-half of the surplus towards the payment of the promissory note, the other half to go towards the working of the factory.

5. Until payment of the promissory note, the plaintiff to have the right to inspect the factory and to be at liberty in case any other action or actions be brought against the defendants, to at once proceed to recover the amount due on the said promissory note or any balance thereof remaining unpaid.

An agreement of co-partnership was also entered into on the same date between the defendants. By it the sole management was to be in the hands of Maughan. Insanally was to keep the books and accounts and attend to all orders for materials given him by Maughan, who had the right to demand transport of one-half of the property at Agricola, with the fixtures, fittings and appurtenances. The remuneration of Maughan as manager and Insanally were left blank.

The ordinary clauses as to balance sheets, divisions of profits (if any) and Bills of Exchange and promissory notes follow, but cheques were only to be signed by Insanally. Then comes a clause to the effect that if a loss to the extent of $300 or more result at any time during the currency of the agreement to the capital, and should a loss of $100 take place more than once, Insanally was to be entitled to at once terminate the agreement and close the factory without any previous (?notice) given to Maughan who should have the claim or demand whatever against Insanally in respect of the dissolution of the partnership or the closing of the factory.

The factory seems to have worked for a short time and a few cases of matches were made and despatched to the plaintiff. Some of these were unsaleable owing to defective manufacture.

On the 21th May, 1905, a letter was sent to the defendants on behalf of Black, Limited, demanding the delivery of various goods used in the manufacture of matches on the ground that they were in the wrongful possession of the defendants, but no writ has been issued or any further action taken. Maughan was indicted at the Criminal Sessions held on 4th of October, 1904, for receiving stolen property but the jury disagreed and subsequently a nolle pros. was entered.

It is needless to say The West Indian Match Company was not carried on at a profit. The agreement entered into between the plaintiff and the defendants must be read with the promissory note, in fact the latter was the result of the former. By the agreement no right of action can be exercised by the plaintiff until any other action or actions are brought against the defendants. No such action or actions has or have been brought, for an action is only commenced when a writ of summons is issued, therefore the right to proceed has not yet accrued. When a promissory note is limited by a collateral agreement the question of consideration arises. In this case the agreement is not collateral to the promissory note nor is there any question of other parties being concerned. The whole arrangement is between the parties themselves.

I give judgment for the defendant Maughan with costs.

Board of Agriculture Notice.

Georgetown, Demerara,
14th December, 1905.

THE following Report on the Farmers' Competition recently held in the Victoria-Belfield District, is published for general information.

OSCAR WEBER,
Secretary, Board of Agriculture.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE,
EXPERIMENTAL FIELDS,
28th November, 1905.

Sir,—I have the honour to report that the judging of the Farmers' Plots in the Upper East Coast Competition was completed yesterday.

The Judges were Messrs. A. W. Bartlett, E. G. Chamberlaine and myself.

2. The three villages inspected were "Ann's Grove and Two Friends," "Golden Grove and Nabaclis" and "Victoria-Belfield."

Of these we were all of opinion that "Ann's Grove and Two Friends" Village was in the best condition, that "Golden Grove and Nabaclis" was the next best, and that "Victoria-Belfield" was in the worst condition.

3. All the villages, owing to the drought and other reasons, are not in such good condition as they were two years ago. At "Golden Grove and Nabaclis" fresh land is being taken in and most of the old cultivated lands are being allowed to run fallow, or are in a state of neglect, owing to the extra pressure of work in taking in these new beds. This land, which is in the course of being shaped into beds, &c., used to be in cultivation, I understand, in 1882.

Many of the farmers from Victoria-Belfield, we were told, were also taking plots of this, practically new land, this may, perhaps, account for the wretched appearance most of the beds presented.

4. Mr. Bartlett, Mr. Chamberlaine and myself came to the following conclusion with respect to the prize winners:—

"Ann's Grove and Two Friends."

Provisions, &c.
1st prize	Robert Alexander	...	$ 10 00
2nd ,,	Jos. Hector	...	8 00
3rd ,,	Gittu	...	6 00
	Babulall	...	6 00
			$ 30 00

"Victoria-Belfield."

Provisions.
1. Jacob Elias	...	$ 8 00
2. H. Collins	...	6 00
3. D. A. Spencer	...	4 00
		$ 18 00

"Golden Grove and Nabaclis."

Canes. First Prize.
1. Nathaniel Mason	...	$ 10 00
2. Timothy Jack	...	8 00
Provisions, &c.
1. A. N. Benn	...	$ 8 00
2. John Solomon	...	6 00
3. David Collins	...	4 00
		$ 36 00

5. Many of the plots were so much alike that some difficulty was experienced in "placing" the prize-winners. Special mention should be made of the young canes grown by Nathaniel Mason and Timothy Jack.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
(Sgd.) EDGAR BECKETT.

Prof. J. B. HARRISON, M.A., C.M.G., &c.,
Director, Department of Science and Agriculture.

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

(APPEAL COURT.)

This 15th Day of December, 1905.

DEMERARA ELECTRIC CO., Ltd., Appellant.
versus
DAY (Commissary of Taxation), Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of Lucie Smith, J. re-calling the decision of the Magistrate of the Georgetown Judicial District and sending back for re-hearing a charge that the appellant on 21st June, 1905, unlawfully kept and used a cart drawn by a mule for purposes of trade without taking out a licence for it as required by section 40 of the Tax Ordinance, 1905.

The Magistrate found as matters of fact that the appellant had no licence for the cart as for one used for trade purposes, and that the cart was used for the purpose of carrying stones to repair the tram line; but held that as the Company used "the cart to carry stones to make up the road, an obligation imposed on them by law" the Company could not be said to have used that cart for trade purposes.

The learned Judge held that the Company carries on a trade within the meaning of the Ordinance, that the repair of the line was necessary for the carrying on of the trade, and that the cart being used for the purpose of repairing the road and so enabling the Company to carry on its trade was used for the purpose of trade.

The Company has appealed from this decision on two grounds (1) that it is not a trader or carrying on a trade and (2) that the keeping and using a cart for the purpose mentioned was not a keeping and using for the purpose of trade within the meaning of section 40 of the Tax Ordinance, 1905.

The questions as to the meaning of the word "trade" in section 40, and whether the Company carried on trade within the meaning of the word as there used appear not to have been very fully argued before the learned Judge and are not dealt with at any length in his decision. Those points as well as the others involved have now been very fully argued and the Court's attention called to many cases throwing some light on the matter and we have arrived at a conclusion as to those points which is decisive of the whole case.

The word "trade" in its ordinary meaning (as stated by the learned Judge) is less extensive than the word "business" and denotes the business of buying and selling (Harris v. Emery 35 L. J. C. P. 87). In each of the cases cited as showing that the word has a wider signification than that just mentioned, the statute under which the question arose unites the word "trade" with other words as "concern in the nature of trade," or "business" or "employment and occupation" and the like, and the decision arrived at is only that the case comes within the statute. None of those decisions is, in our opinion, sufficient to show that the business of running tramcars is a "trade" within the ordinary meaning of the term Common-carriers were by Act 5 and 6 Vict. 122, made liable to the English Bankruptcy law as traders, but have never so far as we are aware been treated for other purposes as traders, and a tramway company which carries passengers only is in the same position. The Tax Ordinance must be construed strictly and the intention to impose thereby any particular tax must be shown by clear and unambiguous language (Oriental Bank v. Wright (1880) 5 App. Cas. 856), hence a restrictive rather than an extensive meaning must be given to any word therein of doubtful meaning, the interpretation of which affects any person's liability to pay any tax. Having regard therefore to the ordinary meaning of the word "trade," and to the meaning of that word when used in other sections (sections 18, 21, 26, 33, 36, 53, and 54) of the Ordinance and to the distinction made in the proviso to section 40 between user for purposes of trade and user for hire we think the Company is liable under section 40 to take out a licence for its tramcars not on the ground that it keeps and uses them "for the purposes of trade" but because it keeps and uses or owns and permits them to be used for hire, and the Company are not traders within the meaning of that section. It follows from this that the cart as to which the question has arisen in this case is not used for purposes of trade and as it has not been kept and used or owned and permitted to be used for hire the Company is not bound to obtain a licence for it under section 40. It is not disputed that a licence must be obtained under section 39.

The appeal is allowed with costs.

John E. Hewick, J.

DEMERARA ELECTRIC COMPANY
versus
DAY.

The question whether the appellant Company carries on a trade within the meaning of the Tax Ordinance, appears to me to be one of considerable difficulty. After consultation with my brother Judges, I think I was wrong in holding that the Company carried on a trade within the meaning of the Ordinance. I concur in the judgment delivered for the reasons therein stated.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 15TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

ANNIBURN, Appellant,

versus

HILL (District Inspector of Police), Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of the Stipendiary Magistrate of the East Coast Judicial District.

The only ground of appeal which has been seriously argued, is the third, namely, that a specific illegality substantially affecting the merits of the case, has been committed in the course of the proceedings, to wit, that the appellant was put upon his trial on two distinct charges which were heard at one and the same time, viz., Hill v. Anniburn for maliciously wounding Mary Myers, and Hill v. Anniburn for maliciously wounding Prince Alfred. The fourth reason, viz., that the conviction was wholly unwarranted by the evidence was touched on, the contradiction between the evidence of the appellant's obtaining a bayonet from the Police Station and the evidence that all bayonets there were in safe custody at the time, being commented on, but it was not contended that the Magistrate, on the evidence before him, could not reasonably convict the appellant. The first and second reasons were very properly abandoned.

The two offences charged occurred almost simultaneously, the persons alleged to have been wounded having apparently been struck, the one not long after the other, and the appellant having, according to the evidence, no great distance to traverse in getting from the one to the other. The Magistrate appears from his memorandum of reasons for his decision, not only to have heard the two charges at one and the same time, but to have treated them as constituting only one offence and dealt with them accordingly. As laid down in Hamilton v. Walker (1892, 2 Queen's B. 25), and in accordance with the principles of criminal law, each charge should have been heard separately and decided on its own merits, a separate decision being given in respect of each.

I therefore recall the Magistrate's decision and refer the case back to him to be reheard and dealt with in the manner just mentioned.

The appeal is allowed with costs.

HENRY A. BOVELL, C.J.

THIS 16TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

MEERZA, Appellant,

versus

HARDING (P.C.), Respondent.

This is an appeal from a decision of Mr. P. H. R. Hill, Stipendiary Magistrate for the Georgetown Judicial District, convicting the appellant under section 93 of the Spirits Ordinance, 1905, of unlawful possession of spirits.

Several reasons of appeal are set out in the notice of reasons for appeal, but they are in substance reducible to three, namely, (1) that under the circumstances disclosed by the evidence, the appellant was not proved to have been in possession of the rum seized within the meaning of the term as used in section 93 (1) of the Ordinance, (2) that illegal evidence was admitted, viz., information stated by the respondent to have been received by him from a third party, and (3) that the Magistrate should have compelled the respondent to disclose the name of his informant when asked to do so.

The information stated by the respondent to have been given him by a third party, was hearsay and was illegally admitted as evidence but without it the other evidence (if the first reason just mentioned is not sustainable) suffices to support the conviction. The admission of that illegal evidence therefore is not a sufficient ground for quashing the conviction.

Nor in my opinion is the fact that the Magistrate did not compel the respondent to disclose the name of his informant sufficient to invalidate the decision but the respondent's statement that from information received he "suspected" the appellant was of no value and should have been treated as valueless, if the informant was not produced as a witness or his name given. (Cf. Reg. v. Richardson, 3 F. and F. 693 and notes thereto).

The question therefore narrows itself to this, was the appellant proved to be in possession of the rum seized within the meaning of section 93 (1) of the Spirits Ordinance, 1905? If he was, then as there is no question as to the quantity seized having exceeded one pint, and as the appellant did not prove any of the justifications specified in section 93 (2) the conviction must stand, but if he was not, then it must be quashed.

It is not disputed in this Court (nor could it successfully be here disputed, the Magistrate having so found as a matter of fact) that the rum seized was found in a room on the second floor of a building, of which second floor the appellant is sole tenant or hirer. It is, however, contended that unless knowledge of its presence there is brought home to him he cannot be held to have possessed it. No doubt (as laid down in Reg. v. Willmett 3 Cox C.C. 281) unless goods on a man's premises are there with his knowledge they are not in his possession at all, as possession comprises a mental element as well as a physical fact. The existence of this mental element must in each case be satisfactorily established as a matter of fact and the point therefore to be decided on this appeal (the Magistrate being the judge of matters of fact in all cases) is whether there was sufficient evidence to reasonably justify the conclusion that the appellant knew that the rum found was on his premises. It is well established that where there are several inmates of the same premises any one of whom may have placed the thing found in the place where it was found, the inference of knowledge on the part of the householder is easily rebutted, although the doctrine laid down by the learned author of Taylor on Evidence (§ 127 a), that even without any evidence in rebuttal such inference, when unsupported by other evidence, is insufficient, may not be altogether sound. In the present case, the evidence of the police constable's suspicion being excluded, the case depends entirely on the finding of the rum in a room on the appellant's premises. The appellant offered no opposition to the search which was made, and disclaimed all knowledge of the rum found. There are two other inmates of the second flour beside the appellant and his wife, viz, Ramjohn and Abdool Ram, no one lives in the room in which the rum was found, but the appellant keeps in it a bedstead frame, a large number of (about 60 or 70) old hats, and articles of coolie jewellery, canisters, &c., altogether of no great value, the door of that room is not locked or fastened, is left open and on the day before the rum was found, the appellant and his wife were absent and Ramjohn left in charge

Under these circumstances, although the Magistrate might, I think, having regard to all the evidence, reasonably conclude that the rum was not placed where found by any one other than an inmate of the premises, there was not, in my opinion, sufficient evidence to establish beyond reasonable doubt (Spencer v. McLean, 12 Dec., 1890,) that it was there placed by the appellant or with his knowledge. The appellant, who is now employed as a salesman at Sandbach, Parker's at a substantial salary, has hitherto borne a good character, and this still further weakens the force of any inference as to his knowledge of the rum being where found.

The decision of the Magistrate is reversed and the appeal allowed with costs.

members of the Militia who promptly responded to the call to arms on Friday, the 1st instant, His Excellency's thanks and the thanks of the community for the efficient manner in which they performed their work—often very trying and arduous—during the time that they were on duty.

2. His Excellency, and indeed all classes of the community, have been much pained by the fact that a certain number of the Militia, unmindful of the oath they took on enrolment, unmindful also of their conditions of service, and disregarding the honour of the Regiment to which they belong, have rendered themselves, by their disloyal and cowardly conduct in not joining the ranks when duty and honour demanded their attendance, unfit for the company of honourable men and untrustworthy of ever again being employed in the service of the King or of any service in which integrity and uprightness are required.

3. Nevertheless it is clear that the force as a whole is not permeated with this utter meanness of spirit; that His Excellency can as heretofore rely upon the continued efficiency and loyalty of those who upheld the honour of the Regiment during the riots; and that the force, purged of all worthless persons, will not fail to retain the confidence reposed in them by the Government and by the Colony.

I have the honour to be,
Sir,
Your obedient servant,

(Sgd.) CHARLES T. COX.

The Commandant,
British Guiana Militia.

R. S. MARSHALL, Colonel,

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

THIS 19TH DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

SENAUTH MARAJH, Appellant,
versus
AMIRITIE, Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the Magistrate of the South Essequebo Judicial District, who ordered the appellant, defendant in the Court below, to deliver up a cow and bull calf alleged to have been detained by him, or pay the value $40 and $5 as damages with costs.

The reasons for appeal are :

1. That the decision of the Magistrate is erroneous in point of law.

(a.) Even if the evidence adduced by and on behalf of the plaintiff is true, the defendant in law, would not be liable, in the absence of evidence, to show that he had had possession of the animals in question, at the time when proceedings were taken against him.

(b.) That there was no evidence to show that the defendant at any time or when proceedings were taken, had possession of the animals in question, and the Magistrate was not justified in ordering the delivery of the said animals.

(c.) The evidence does not support the plaint as laid, and the Magistrate was not justified in ordering the delivery of the said animals.

(d.) Even if it were true, as alleged by the plaintiff, that the animals were sent to the pasture of the defendant and the defendant did take them on agistment, the Magistrate should not decide against the defendant.

2. That illegal evidence has been admitted by the Magistrate's Court and there is not sufficient legal evidence to sustain the decision after rejecting such illegal evidence.

(a.) Evidence showing that animals were agisted and payment given for same.

Reasons 1 a to c were argued together being to the effect that in order to sustain a claim in detinue, it was necessary to prove that the plaintiff was in possession of the cattle or had control of them before or at the time when proceedings were taken and that there was no such proof.

It is true that in order to sustain a claim in detinue, possession or control must be proved, but there is evidence, which the Magistrate believed, that the defendant was in the pasture at "Cheltenham and Tewkesbury" when the cow and calf were taken there; he asked whose cow it was and on being told, after making an entry in a book, directed the person taking it to leave it. This was done and subsequently the defendant was paid 24 cents for the pasturage in March.

In July the defendant was asked for the cattle and said to plaintiff that she must not be frightened that she must be patient and she would find the cow and also that he would show her the cow in the pasture. A search was made by plaintiff's son and two others but without result. The defendant said he would also search and promised the cow-minder of a neighbouring cattle farm, 48c. if he would search for it as it had run away. The cattle-minder did so after permission was given by his employer. The cattle were not found.

Apparently reliance was placed on the fact that transport of an undivided half of Plantation Cheltenham and two-thirds of Tewkesbury to one Ramowtar and the defendant, was only passed on 15th April, 1905, Before this, however, defendant had bought a quarter share, but, according to Mooli Maraj, had not taken any part in the management. The Magistrate disbelieved this latter evidence and was justified in doing so on the receipt of the purchase money of the quarter share which is dated 4th February, 1905, and the other evidence.

There was thus therefore clearly proof of possession and control even without the other receipts for the payment of pasturage for January, February, March and April, 1905, which are signed Seenauth Marajh & Co. Defendant is known by this name although his real name is Rughunath. He admitted signing the receipts but said he only did so in April. The evidence was clearly admissible to show that the defendant acted as owner and received money for the agistment of cattle. It was also argued that as the claim is one in detinue and there was no proof of detention, whatever claim there might be on the contract of agistment, there was none on the plaint as laid.

According to the minutes of proceedings, an objection was taken that the claim did not disclose any cause of action because there was no allegation to show under what circumstances defendant detained the cattle. This was overruled and the plea in defence made; it was substantially the same as the reasons of appeal with which I have to deal.

In actions of detinue, it has been held that the bailee cannot be permitted to defend himself on the ground that he has kept the article so carelessly and negligently that he is no longer in a condition to restore it to the bailor. Reeve v. Palmer, 5 C. B. N. S. 90. In the notes in this case, it is stated that the burthen of proof is on the defendant to show that the possession has ceased before suit brought by accident, death or by some means beyond his control.

The Magistrate had to deal with the facts as proved and did so, he is not confined to a particular form of plaint. In cases of agistment, there is a limited liability on the part of the person taking cattle for agistment; he is not an insurer and it is open to him to show that the loss was not the result of his negligence for negligence would make him liable. (Smith v Cook, 12 B. D. 81). This he did not do, see also Momsen v. Moetert, 1 Juta 185.

On the facts before the Magistrate, he was justified in finding, if he believed the plaintiff and her witnesses, that the cow and calf were given for agistment to the defendant, that they are missing and that he had not excused himself of his liability. As to the damages the Magistrate as a jury could assess them.

I dismiss the appeal with costs.

Government Notice.

GOVERNMENT SECRETARY'S OFFICE,
Georgetown, Demerara,
23rd December, 1905.

270.

THE following Private Bill, which it is proposed shall be brought before the Governor and Court of Policy for consideration, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,
CHARLES T. COX,
Government Secretary.

THE EAST DEMERARA SEA DEFENCES BILL, 1905.

EXPLANATORY MEMORANDUM.

The object of this Bill is to provide for the Sea Defences of the East Coast of Demerara, between Kitty and Mahaica.

Instead of requiring each individual owner of land to keep up his sea defences as is at present the case under the Sea Defence Ordinance, 1883, the Bill provides for the sea defences of the district named being dealt with and maintained as a whole, and the cost defrayed by the owners of land in the district, in proportion to the extent of land owned by them. By dealing with the sea defences in this way, it is hoped that they will be more efficiently and more economically kept up than is possible when each proprietor keeps up his own sea defences separately.

The oversight and control of the sea defences is entrusted by the Bill to four Commissioners, one being the Colonial Civil Engineer, and three being elected. Two of them are to be elected by the proprietors of the estates in the district, and one by representatives of the Village Councils, of the incorporated villages in the district. By this means, the people who are interested and who have to find the money for sea defences will, through the Commissioners, have the control of the spending of it, and no sea defence works are to be undertaken until they have been sanctioned by the Commissioners.

These works will be of two kinds, (1) the maintenance and upkeep of existing sea defences, called "Annually recurrent works," and (2) the construction of new sea defences where necessary, called "Extraordinary works."

Digitized by Google

The cost of these works is to be assessed upon all land in the district, but in case of Extraordinary works, the cost is to spread over a period of fifty years.

All works sanctioned by the Commissioners will be executed by the Public Works Department, which is to have charge of the sea defences of the district.

A provision (clause 23) has been inserted in the Bill, which enables any owner of land to have his holding assessed separately from the estate of which it forms part, and renders his land liable to be taken in execution only for the assessment upon it. It is hoped by this means to prevent the recurrence of those hardships which have from time to time occurred, of the owners of small lots of land having their lots sold along with the estate on which they are, for non-payment by the owner of the estate of the cost of sea defence works under the present law, and thus losing their land from no fault of their own.

The reason why the operation of the Bill is confined to the East Coast of Demerara is because in that part of the Colony the inroads of the sea are more destructive than in other parts of the Colony, and the upkeep of the sea defences of that part of the Colony have been more troublesome and expensive than elsewhere. For the rest of the Colony the present law, for the present at least, seems adequate.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO MAKE PROVISION FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF THE SEA DEFENCES OF CERTAIN PORTIONS OF THE COLONY."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

Government Notice.

Government Secretary's Office,
Georgetown, Demerara,
270. 23rd December, 1905.

THE following Private Bill, which it is proposed shall be brought before the Governor and Court of Policy for consideration, is hereby published for general information.

By Command,
CHARLES T. COX,
Government Secretary.

THE EAST DEMERARA SEA DEFENCES BILL, 1905.

Explanatory Memorandum.

The object of this Bill is to provide for the Sea Defences of the East Coast of Demerara, between Kitty and Mahaica.

Instead of requiring each individual owner of land to keep up his sea defences as is at present the case under the Sea Defence Ordinance, 1883, the Bill provides for the sea defences of the district named being dealt with and maintained as a whole, and the cost defrayed by the owners of land in the district, in proportion to the extent of land owned by them. By dealing with the sea defences in this way, it is hoped that they will be more efficiently and more economically kept up than is possible when each proprietor keeps up his own sea defences separately.

The oversight and control of the sea defences is entrusted by the Bill to four Commissioners, one being the Colonial Civil Engineer, and three being elected. Two of them are to be elected by the proprietors of the estates in the district, and one by representatives of the Village Councils, of the incorporated villages in the district. By this means, the people who are interested and who have to find the money for sea defences will, through the Commissioners, have the control of the spending of it, and no sea defence works are to be undertaken until they have been sanctioned by the Commissioners.

These works will be of two kinds, (1) the maintenance and upkeep of existing sea defences, called "Annually recurrent works," and (2) the construction of new sea defences where necessary, called "Extraordinary works."

Digitized by Google

The cost of these works is to be assessed upon all land in the district, but in case of Extraordinary works, the cost is to spread over a period of fifty years.

All works sanctioned by the Commissioners will be executed by the Public Works Department, which is to have charge of the sea defences of the district.

A provision (clause 23) has been inserted in the Bill, which enables any owner of land to have his holding assessed separately from the estate of which it forms part, and renders his land liable to be taken in execution only for the assessment upon it. It is hoped by this means to prevent the recurrence of those hardships which have from time to time occurred, of the owners of small lots of land having their lots sold along with the estate on which they are, for non-payment by the owner of the estate of the cost of sea defence works under the present law, and thus losing their land from no fault of their own.

The reason why the operation of the Bill is confined to the East Coast of Demerara is because in that part of the Colony the inroads of the sea are more destructive than in other parts of the Colony, and the upkeep of the sea defences of that part of the Colony have been more troublesome and expensive than elsewhere. For the rest of the Colony the present law, for the present at least, seems adequate.

A BILL ENTITLED "AN ORDINANCE TO MAKE PROVISION FOR THE MAINTENANCE OF THE SEA DEFENCES OF CERTAIN PORTIONS OF THE COLONY."

BE it enacted by the Governor of British Guiana, with the advice and consent of the Court of Policy thereof, as follows :—

SUPREME COURT OF BRITISH GUIANA.

GENERAL CIVIL JURISDICTION.

THIS 21ST DAY OF DECEMBER, 1905.

In re DAVID FOO, Insolvent,

versus

Ex parte HO-A-HING, a Creditor.

This is an appeal from the decision of Hewick, J., confirming the rejection by the Official Receiver of a part, amounting to $1,928 88, of the proof lodged by the appellant against the estate of David Foo.

The sum of $1,928 88 was part of a larger debt owing by the insolvent to the appellant, on the 13th May, 1903, for goods sold and delivered and money paid and advanced by the former to the latter, at his request. The several items making up this sum of $4,928 88, are said to have been omitted from Ho-a Hing's ledger by his book-keeper, Henery, and Foo's account in that ledger, on the 13th May, 1903, showed an indebtedness by Foo to Ho-a-Hing of $2,221 59 or thereabouts.

The Official Receiver rejected the claim for $4,928 88, on the grounds (shortly stated) (1) that by an agreement made on or about the 13th May, 1903, between the appellant, the insolvent and one Fung-Teen-Yong (which agreement has been fully carried out by Fung-Teen-Yong), the appellant agreed to accept from Fung-Teen-Yong a cash payment of $300 and a promissory note (since paid) for $1,400, in full satisfaction of the whole of the insolvent's indebtedness to him up to that date, thereby discharging the insolvent from liability and accepting Fung-Teen-Yong as his debtor in lieu of the insolvent; and (2) that the appellant is estopped from claiming this sum, as he at the date of the agreement wilfully concealed from Fung-Teen-Yong the existence of a debt or claim for this sum, and thus induced him to enter into the agreement.

These grounds are really alternative: for if the parties actually agreed that the whole of the insolvent's indebtedness (whatever it might be), should be discharged, then no question of estoppel arises, that question coming up only if the actual agreement between the parties did not extend to the whole of the insolvent's indebtedness but on other grounds than actual agreement the appellant was debarred from asserting that the sum now sought to be recovered was owing by the insolvent.

The learned Judge appears to have upheld the Official Receiver's decision on the ground that it was actually agreed that the whole of the insolvent's indebtedness was discharged.

From that decision the appellant has appealed on the several grounds set out in the memorandum of grounds of appeal. These are in substance reducible to two, namely (1), that the evidence, documentary and other, did not show that the agreement arrived at included or was intended to include the whole of the insolvent's indebtedness, but on the contrary showed that it included and was intended to include only the debt appearing on the appellant's ledger, and that the insolvent and Fung-Teen-Yong were aware at the time that part of the insolvent's indebtedness did not appear in the ledger and was not taken into account; and (2) that on the evidence the appellant was under no obligation to disclose to Fung-Teen-Yong the insolvent's indebtedness to him outside or beyond the ledger account, but on the contrary the insolvent and Fung-Teen-Yong knew of such indebtedness, and abstained from enquiry wilfully and with a view to defraud the appellant, or (at any rate) Fung-Teen-Yong had such knowledge as put him on enquiry as to the existence of such indebtedness.

It is settled law that there may be accord and satisfaction of a debt by means of payment of a smaller sum made by a third party on behalf of the debtor (Welby v. Drake, 1 C. and P. 557), and according to Roman Dutch law even without the debtor's assent. In the present case the appellant states that he advised D. Foo to get some one "to take over" his account and that F. T. Yong agreed "to take over" Foo's account. The expression used is somewhat vague, but from the evidence of Yong that he "assumed the debt owing by Foo" and agreed to pay it, from the language of the letter of the 13th May, 1903, and of the receipt of the same date, the language being that of appellant's agent in the matter, and from the form of the claim against D. Foo's estate put in by Yong, it is, we think, clear that the transaction between the appellant, the insolvent and Yong was not the sale and purchase of a book debt (as urged by the appellant's counsel), but was an arrangement for the satisfaction by Yong of some debt of D. Foo's owing to the appellant. The question then is, to what debt of D. Foo's did the agreement for satisfaction relate? The fair conclusion to be drawn from the evidence in our opinion is that Yong believed that the whole of D. Foo's indebtedness to the appellant was being dealt with, and that he agreed to make the cash payment and to give the promissory note on that understanding and in consideration of the discharge of the whole debt. His obtaining from the appellant a promise not to oppose any transfer or mortgage by D. Foo to Yong is insufficient to support the contrary inference, as until the promissory note was paid such promise would be necessary for his protection, even if the whole debt was the subject of the agreement, and therefore it cannot be inferred that he must have obtained this promise to protect himself in respect of some debt owing by Foo to the appellant other than the one dealt with. And although Yong was D. Foo's brother-in-law and knew that some of the items in his own account with the appellant had through the fraud or negligence of the appellant's book-keeper been omitted from the ledger, these facts are not per se, or if coupled with the obtaining of the promise already mentioned sufficient to show knowledge on Yong's part of the extent of Foo's indebtedness and that it exceeded at that date (nearly 6 months after Henery's misconduct was discovered) the sum shewn on the ledger, or to put him on enquiry, or to outweigh the evidence which indicates that he believed he was dealing and intended to deal with the whole of Foo's indebtedness to the appellant.

On the other hand, it is we think equally clear that the appellant (acting through his agent) never intended to deal with the whole of D. Foo's indebtedness, that the omissions from the ledger were kept in the background, and the whole arrangement made by him with reference to the ledger debt only.

The two parties were therefore never ad idem and strictly speaking no binding contract was actually made. It may be that if the difference of intention between the appellant and Yong had come to light before the so-called contract was acted on, it might have been rescinded on that ground. But Yong has carried out his part of the arrangement and the appellant has received $1,700 under it, and it cannot now be set aside by the appellant. It may be that if the appellant by his agent, had not been applied to for information as to the amount of the debt or had given none, there would not have been any obligation on him to disclose the full amount of the indebtedness; but the evidence as to what took place at the time when the arrangement was made, and the appellant's agent supplied Yong with the information as to the amount of Foo's debt in our opinion brings the case within the principles laid down in Carr v. L. and N. W. R. Co., 10 C. P. 307, and estops the appellant from denying that the whole debt was satisfied. It may be added that even if not estopped, and now entitled to rescind the agreement on the ground of mistake, the appellant could not repudiate it without restoring Yong to his original position and therefore could not while retaining all the moneys paid by Yong under that arrangement act in contravention of what was understood by Yong to be its effect, and thus diminish the consideration for which he entered into it, by insisting that part of D. Foo's indebtedness was undischarged and claiming in respect thereof against his estate in insolvency.

The appeal is therefore dismissed with costs.

LIMITED JURISDICTION.

This 22nd Day of December, 1905.

SOLOMON JOB
versus
J. P. FERNANDES.

The plaintiff's claim is for the sum of $186 12, principal and interest on a promissory note made by the defendant in favour of the plaintiff on 26th May, 1905, and payable three months after date.

The defence is, shortly, that the promissory note was signed and made in June, 1905; that it was made payable at the British Guiana Bank; that the defendant has never received the customary notice of its due date; that it was obtained by fraud on the false representation that it would be discounted at one of the Banks and the proceeds handed over to the defendant; that it was never so discounted; that the defendant has never received any money or consideration whatever; and lastly, that no money is due.

In his reply plaintiff admits that the promissory note was made payable at the British Guiana Bank as well as the fact that it was not negotiated but denies the other allegations, and contends that even if true the non-receipt of notice of due date is no defence.

From the evidence I have no doubt that the promissory note was made on the date of the document itself. It was evidently a second note made to replace one of a prior date for $120 which had been left as security with Mr. L. M. Hill, who had advanced money to plaintiff on it. The note now sued on was given by Mr. Hill in exchange for the other note, and when plaintiff asked for a further loan the defendant went with him and told Mr. Hill the note was all right and more money could be lent on it as he would meet it. Mr. Hill, however, declined to lend any more, he had advanced plaintiff $47 50. When the note became due it was left with the British Guiana Bank for collection but was returned as the maker had no account there.

Defendant also wrote a letter to Mr. Hill in which he acknowledged the promissory note made on the 26th May, 1905, saying he was prepared to take it up at the appointed time. He now says the statement that it was signed on that date is not true.

Under the circumstances as detailed it is impossible to believe that the defendant did not know the note was not discounted at a Bank or that being aware of the fact he would not have called Mr Hill's attention to the arrangement which he now asks the Court to believe. The plaintiff says he paid the defendant the amount of the promissory note, $184 60, in cash, utilising for that purpose all he had in the house except a dollar or two. This is denied by the defendant who says he never received any consideration.

It can hardly be credited that the defendant would write or go to Mr. Hill as he did simply to enable the plaintiff to get money on this promissory note if he had received none.

With regard to the defence that there was no notice of due date, by the Bills of Exchange Ordinance, 13 of 1891, section 89, the drawer of a promissory note shall be deemed to correspond with the acceptor of a bill, and if it is payable at a particular banker but not there only undertakes to pay the bill at maturity when presented for payment at the banker's, his contract being the primary or absolute contract like that of an acceptor. There is no need to give him any notice of the due date of the note. As to the misrepresentation the defendant knew the note was with Mr. Hill and acquiesced in what was done.

It was also argued that it was not likely a man of plaintiff's position would have such a sum, as is represented by the promissory note at hand, but the Court cannot, even if it were not likely, overlook the evidence given.

It is very strange that the defendant on the 15th June, 1905, should be seeking to get another note for $200 discounted at the Bank as is shown by a letter written by Mr. Wills to the Manager and his own statement. He says he did not bother about it any more after taking the letter. No reply was sent by the Bank. The defendant evidently was in want of a fairly large sum of money and had been in the habit of borrowing from various people, and giving promissory notes was no new means of raising money. The whole question is whether the defendant received the $184 60 from the plaintiff or not.

As I have remarked before it is impossible to believe that when the defendant became aware that the note was in the hands of Mr. Hill he would not, had he not received the money, have made some reference to the fact instead of saying the note was all right, and he would meet it when it become due.

I give judgment for the plaintiff with costs.

John E. Hewick, J.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION.

This 22nd Day of December, 1905.

COZIER, Appellant,
versus
COX (Commissary of Taxation), Respondent.

This is an appeal from the decision of the acting Magistrate of the South Essequebo Judicial District convicting the appellant on a charge of absenting himself on the 9th November, 1905, without reasonable cause from the service of his employer, the respondent, contrary to the provisions of section 3 of the Employers and Servants Ordinance, 1853 (1 of 1853).

Several reasons of appeal have been given, the principal being (1) that the relation of employer and servant did not exist between the respondent and appellant, the latter, assuming some contract of service was proved, being a boatman employed for the Commissary's Department and paid from the Treasury on a monthly pay sheet as a public employé, and not the Commissary's servant; (2) that the existence of a contract made as prescribed by section 3 was not proved; and (3) that the evidence established that the appellant had reasonable cause for absenting himself on the day in question.

It appears that the appellant on the 9th November was suffering from the effect of the breaking of a small bone in the left forearm. He had been beaten a few days before and was then taken to the Government doctor in Wakenaam, but the breakage was not discovered at that time, but only on the morning of the 9th. His arm being in a painful state the appellant on the 9th November went to Suddie to consult Dr. Ozzard who is in charge of the Colonial Hospital there, and was attended to, the doctor giving him a certificate that he was "suffering from a fracture of the left forearm" and that the injury would "cause temporary disability." Before going to Suddie the appellant told his wife to tell the respondent that he was going to see the doctor at Suddie, and the respondent admits that on meeting her on that day she told him the appellant had gone to get his arm attended to.

The acting Magistrate apparently held that the case was governed by the Colonial Regulations as to leave and that the appellant could and should have obtained leave to absent himself and not having done so was guilty of the offence charged.

The section under which the charge is laid does not make it an offence to be absent from service without leave but to be absent "without reasonable cause." It is shewn by the evidence that the appellant went to Suddie to have his arm attended to and there can in my opinion be no doubt that the appellant in this case had reasonable cause for absenting himself from service.

This being decisive of the whole matter it is unnecessary to express any opinion on the other reasons for appeal.

The acting Magistrate's decision is reversed and the appeal allowed with costs.
